

About CPCC

Central Piedmont Community College has contributed to the Charlotte region for more than 50 years and intends to remain a national leader in workforce development.

Over the years, CPCC has expanded its footprint to nine locations in Mecklenburg County and online education. CPCC also has expanded its academic programs by offering more than 300 degree, diploma, and certification programs, customized corporate training, market-focused continuing education courses, and special interest classes that respond to the needs of the community. As a result, CPCC serves thousands of Mecklenburg County residents each year as a vital partner to business, government and educational agencies.
